

Intervention

In medicine, intervention is an action which changes the outcome or course of a condition or disease so as to prevent harm or improve health through the use of treatments, medicinal products, medical devices or procedures/surgery.