

Placebo

In clinical trials, a placebo is a medicine that contains no active ingredients. Placebos have no known medical effects.

The 'placebo effect' is a benefit or side effect perceived by patients taking a placebo, despite the fact that no medicine is involved.