

Quantitative Study

A quantitative study aims to measure and quantify, and uses statistical methods to analyse data. Unlike qualitative studies, they do not collect information about people's perspectives and motivations.